

Participating in a Constituency Association

Making democracy work for Alberta's future

Politics
begin where you live.

Every major Alberta party has a constituency association in each of Alberta's 87 constituencies. It is here that the party takes the pulse of the community, recruits new members, selects candidates, organizes the constituency campaign during an election and keeps the party accountable to the people it represents.

Joining a constituency association has many benefits, including the following opportunities:

- Gaining access to your MLA or the candidate for your constituency
- Engaging in greater political involvement, including running for office
- Tackling issues that affect your community
- Demonstrating commitment to your party, which is essential to having more influence
- Networking with prominent community stakeholders

How do I join a constituency association?

1. Join a political party, if you haven't already.
2. Find out which constituency you're in. Go to Elections Alberta at www.electionsalberta.ab.ca, or call 310-0000.
3. Call the party and ask for the contact person for your local constituency association.
4. Attend the association's next meeting. Sign up for any kind of involvement that appeals to you.

Be aware that now is the best time to get involved. Between elections you have the best opportunities to secure an influential position in the association and make a difference.
